Hanoi, Vietnam

Hanoi, the capital city of Vietnam (officially known as Socialist Republic of Vietnam), is the center of culture and politics of the country, and is widely known for its centuries old architectures, vibrant nightlife and delectable cuisines. It is also considered as one of the seven Asian "food paradises" along with Bangkok, Tokyo, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Mumbai.

With an area of about 3,300 square meter, Hanoi is the house of about 8 million people, located on the bank of Red River Delta. Hanoi also holds the crown of the "City for Peace" by UNESCO in 1999 in recognition of its contributions to the struggle for peace, its efforts to promote equality in the community, protect the environment, promote culture and education and care for younger generations. It has credit to host the APEC Summit (2006), the World Economic Forum on ASEAN (2018) and most recently the second DPRK-US Summit (2019), thus raising its head in international arena.

Eight UNESCO World Heritage Sites lie in Vietnam, of which the 'Hanoi Citadel' is located in Hanoi itself, while others two - Ha Long Bay, and Trang An Landscape Complex in Ninh Binh (the home of the legendary King Kong) are within 120 km from Hanoi.

Hanoi is projected to be the fastest growing city in the world in terms of GDP growth from 2008 to 2025. There are currently over 48,000 businesses operating under the enterprise law at present. The economic strength of the city is mostly dependent upon tourism, finance and now banking playing an increasingly important role.
